

Chesapeake Bay Program Communications Office Updates

Recently published:

- 1/28 - Hard-hit oyster growers see silver lining in restoration
- 2/01 - A feast for the eyes and for wildlife
- 2/03 - Three ways to reduce pollution while improving lives
- 2/11 - It takes a village to monitor a watershed
- 2/18 - Where a man of science predicted eclipses, raised crops and argued against slavery
- 2/19 - Planting seeds in the community: Five urban farming groups creating long-term change
- 2/22 - Six Black-led organizations changing the face of outdoor recreation
- 2/24 - The buzz around buying native plants

Coming soon:

March

- Women's History Month
- Creature feature: Saltmarsh sparrow
- Virginia's wildlife corridors
- What's under that leaf
- MWEE
- Bay Barometer

April

- Keep America Beautiful Month
- Spring amphibian migration
- Earth Day: Restore Our Earth

May

- Florists of the Bay
- Invasive species
- Climate change and wetland migration