

Jonathan Champion is the Branch Chief for Planning and Reporting in the Stormwater Management Division of the District Department of Energy and the Environment. His responsibilities include tracking and reporting of District stormwater management activities to address MS4 Permit requirements, and long-range planning to meet TMDL requirements.

Jonathan has sixteen years of experience in the environmental and water quality field. Prior to joining DOEE, he worked for both consulting firms and non-profit organizations on a wide range of issues, from oil spill response, to aquatic invasive species policy, to water quality monitoring and Chesapeake Bay restoration efforts.
