

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

GreenRibbonSchools

Mid-Atlantic Environmental
Literacy Summit,
Annapolis, Maryland
December 2, 2013

Why ED-Green Ribbon Schools?

- History
- Authorities and programs
- Not a certification
- ED as connector & communicator

Consensus-Based Pillars

- Reducing environmental impact and costs;
- Improving health and wellness; and
- Providing effective environmental education.

Communicating Best Practices and Resources

- Newsletter
- Highlights of the Honorees
- Social Media
- Ceremony and Announcement Events

Results & Developments

- 156 Schools; 14 Districts
- 30+ Participating States
- Green Strides Portal
- District Sustainability Award
- Nationwide Best Practices Tour

A green decorative shape, resembling a stylized leaf or a torn piece of paper, is located on the left side of the image. It has a wavy, irregular edge that separates it from the white background.

Montgomery County Public Schools, Maryland

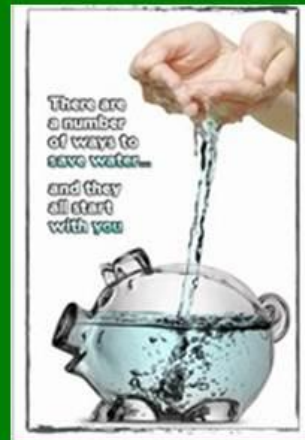

Montgomery County Public Schools, Maryland Poolesville Elementary School Conservation Read Aloud

Montgomery County Public Schools, Maryland
Capt. James Daly Elementary School
Safe and Healthy Walk to School

Cedar Grove ES, MCPS, MD – Where signage on recycle bins, on lunch carts, over toilets and sinks, on light switches, and in hallways help us remember our purpose.

A green decorative shape, resembling a stylized leaf or a torn piece of paper, is located on the left side of the image. It has a wavy, organic edge that curves from the top left towards the bottom left.

Lower Merion School District, Pennsylvania

A green abstract shape, resembling a stylized leaf or a torn piece of paper, is located on the left side of the image. It has a wavy, irregular edge that separates it from the white background.

Marshall County Public Schools, West Virginia

Coming Soon....

- Post- Secondary Nomination category
- New Green Strides Portal

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

GreenRibbonSchools

