

The New Chesapeake Watershed Agreement:

Affirming Our Commitment &
Charting the Next Course

Nick DiPasquale, Director
Chesapeake Bay Program (EPA)

June 5, 2013

How did we get here?

- 2009 – Federal Executive Order was issued
- 2010 – CBP Agreement - Chesapeake 2000 (C2K) – goals either expired or unfulfilled – whether or not they were met
- 2010 - CBP's Top Leadership called for coordinating/integrating goals, outcomes, actions of the CBP with those of the EO
- 2011 - CBP EC agreed to a 3-year, 4 stage discussion and process

Stage 1: Use Goal Implementation Teams to Set Direction (2011)

Stage 2: Develop Negotiation Protocols (2012)

Stage 3: Negotiate New Agreement (2013)

Stage 4: Implement New Agreement (2013-2025)

Why A New Partnership Agreement ?

The Next Generation Agreement:

- Renews commitments & sets new goals
- Provides opportunity for full participation by the headwater states
- Updates science, governance and management techniques – i.e., climate change, adaptive management
- Improves coordination, integration & collaboration among the partners
- Harmonizes the EO and TMDL with the Partnership agreement and governance structures

Framework being considered

ALL goals, outcomes and strategies derived from the CBP Goal Teams – issue experts & stakeholders from across the jurisdictions / watershed.

*CBP's Executive Council (EC) to "agree" on overarching GOALS &
initial OUTCOMES for the partnership
(This is the content of the new Watershed agreement)*

*CBP's Principals' Staff Committee (PSC) to track OUTCOMES , ensuring they are measureable &
achievable; adapting as needed*

*CBP's Management Board (MB) to manage and track the STRATEGIES, adapting them as necessary over time
for success*

Resource managers and decision makers will be guided by the strategies while retaining some flexibility to implement the practices that make the most sense for their region.
